Help make history on July 29-30 in Atlanta! The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has proposed the first-ever, national plan to cut carbon pollution from power plants. Now the EPA is holding public hearings in just four cities around the country and Atlanta is one of them.

You can help make sure the Southeast, and the whole country, gets a strong plan to clean our air, protect our climate and expand the clean energy economy by attending the hearing and joining hundreds of others at the Atlanta Climate March, at 12 p.m. at Woodruff Park in Atlanta, Tuesday, July 29.

http://sc.org/ATLclimatemarch