Dear Legislators and Governor Brown:

Coal plants are the single biggest air polluter in the US, making coal a leading cause of climate disruption and a major public health threat. Overall, Oregon still gets one-third of its energy from coal, much of that coming from out-of-state coal plants. Pacific Power, Oregon’s second biggest utility company, gets two-thirds of its energy from coal plants and less than 10% from clean energy. Pacific Power is putting its customers at risk of further electricity price increases as the cost of coal power rises across the country.

Oregonians want clean energy.

We have an obligation—and an incredible opportunity—to end our dependence on dirty coal and bring more clean energy jobs to Oregon. We need a timely and cost-effective transition off of coal to clean, renewable energy such as wind, solar and energy efficiency. Oregon has made great strides against coal, setting a retirement date for Oregon’s only coal plant by 2020. Clean energy has already brought over $9 billion of investment and 5,000 long-term jobs to Oregon, supporting local communities across the state.

Let’s protect our climate, create local jobs, and transition from coal to clean, renewable energy.

The undersigned support legislative action that transitions Oregon off coal by 2025 and onto clean, renewable energy.

Sincerely,
