WHO WOULD YOU TRUST TO PROTECT HER LUNGS FROM SMOG POLLUTION?

MEDICAL SCIENTISTS

OR

FOSSIL FUEL COMPANIES?

EPA: Listen to our country’s scientists and medical experts—not fossil fuel companies—on the smog pollution standard. Protect our children, not polluters.

In the coming year, the EPA will have a choice: rely on the medical community’s recommendation to lower the smog pollution standard to 60 ppb, which would protect the health of as many young children as possible, or rely on the fossil fuel lobby’s recommendation for a higher standard, which would shield polluters from being held accountable for their pollution. Thousands of families with young children are depending on the EPA to make the right decision for public health.

Tell the EPA to side with medical science so we can all breath easier: action.sierraclub.org/smog