Border patrol agents know the laws that protect our public lands don’t make our borders safer. Yet some in Congress want to use border security as an excuse to override basic environmental protections like the Safe Drinking Water Act and the Endangered Species Act. Without those protections, roads, walls, and bases can be built in places like Olympic National Park with no input from the public at all. It’s already happened in California. Don’t let it happen in Washington.

Tell Senators Cantwell and Murray to oppose efforts to weaken environmental protections before more of our special places are lost forever. Take action at sierraclub.org/nomorewalls
