Harnessing local natural resources is a Nebraska tradition, and so is Nebraska’s Public Power system. Four new democratically elected Public Power Board Directors have been sworn in, serving in the time-honored tradition of public engagement and representation around important decisions facing our economic and environmental future. On behalf of the Sierra Club, the nation’s oldest environmental organization:

Welcome to Public Power! We look forward to forging new paths together.